GENERAL INFORMATION

GST/HST reporting periods

As a GST/HST registrant, the reporting period you use determines how often you prepare and send us your GST/HST returns. When you become a registrant, you can select, based on your threshold amount, one of the optional reporting periods. If you do not select a reporting period, we assign you the reporting period that requires the least frequent filing of GST/HST returns available for your threshold amount. For example, if your threshold amount is $500,000 or less, we will assign you an annual reporting period. The reporting period assigned to you will remain as your filing period until you make an election to change it, or until your threshold amount exceeds the maximum for that reporting period.

Your reporting period applies to all branches or divisions you may have.

Who can change their reporting period?

You can make an election to change your reporting period if the reporting period you choose is an available option based on your threshold amount.

If you are a charity, you can make an election to change your reporting period regardless of your threshold amount. For these purposes, charity means a registered charity for income tax purposes or a registered Canadian amateur athletic association, but does not include such organizations as schools, colleges, hospitals or municipalities.

If you are an eligible listed financial institution, you can make an election for monthly or quarterly reporting. However, once you make an election to report quarterly or monthly, you cannot revert back to an annual reporting period unless you meet the threshold amount for annual filing.

Before you choose annual filing, you need to know . . .

A consequence of filing annually is that, in addition to filing your GST/HST return, you may be required to make quarterly instalment payments.

- If your net tax was $1,500 or more in your immediately preceding fiscal year, you have to send us an instalment payment within one month after the end of each fiscal quarter of your current fiscal year.
- If, in your first year as an annual filer, your reporting period is less than a full fiscal year, you need to prorate your net tax so that you can estimate your net tax for the following fiscal year (your second year of filing). If the estimated amount for the following year is over $1,500, you have to send us quarterly instalment payments (as described above) in your second fiscal year.

In both of these cases, the instalment payments will equal 1/4 of your estimated annual net tax. The GST/HST return you file at the end of your fiscal year will reconcile your instalment payments with your total annual net tax.

If you have an annual GST/HST reporting period and if your net tax was less than $1,500 in your preceeding fiscal year, you do not have to make instalment payments the following fiscal year.

Effective date

Once you make an election, your reporting period will take effect on:

- the day you become a registrant;
- the first day of your fiscal year, if you are already a registrant; or
- the first day of a fiscal quarter, if your election for annual filing ceases to be valid on the first day of that quarter (e.g., you exceed the $500,000 threshold amount in your second or third quarter) and you are electing to file monthly instead of quarterly.

Submitting your election

If you are electing to change from quarterly to annual filing, file your election no later than three months after the beginning of the fiscal year in which the election is to take effect.

In all other cases, file your election no later than two months after the day the election is to take effect.

If you are a new registrant, make an election to change your reporting period on or before the effective date of your GST/HST registration when the election is to take effect on that day.

What to include in your threshold amount calculation

When calculating your threshold amount to determine your reporting period, include your annual taxable sales and revenues, including zero–rated sales and services made in Canada.

If you have associates, also include the annual taxable sales of your associates in the calculation of your total annual taxable sales. You are considered to be associated if you meet any of the following conditions:

- If you are a corporation, you and another corporation are associated if you are associated for income tax purposes.
- If you are a business other than a corporation, you and a corporation are associated if you control the corporation, or you are a member of a group that controls the corporation, and each member of that group is associated with each other member.
- Your business is associated with a partnership if the total of your share and the shares of all your associates is more than half of the total of the partnership's profits.
- Your business is associated with a trust if the total value of your interest, and all your associates' interests in the trust, is more than half the total value of all interests in the trust.
- Your business is associated with any person if you are each associated with the same third person.

Threshold amount calculation

Use the following calculation to determine your threshold amount for a fiscal year.

Enter your total taxable sales and revenues (paid to you or that became due) for your immediately preceding fiscal year. Do not include amounts collected as GST/HST or provincial sales tax.	$ _____	(1)
Less: Amounts included on line 1 that are for:
Goodwill	$ _____	(2)
Financial services	_____	(3)
Sales of capital real property	_____	(4)
Zero-rated exports	_____	(5)
Supplies made outside Canada	_____	(6)
Add: Lines 2 through line 6	_____	(7)
Line 1 minus line 7	_____	(8)
Line 8 divided by the number of days in that fiscal year	_____	(9)
Line 9 multiplied by 365	$ _____	(10)

Note

If you have no associates, the amount on line 10 is your threshold amount for the fiscal year. If you have associates, the above calculation has to be repeated for each associate using the preceding fiscal year end of the associate that ends on or before your last fiscal year end. The line 10 total for all associates has to be added to your line 10 total to get your threshold amount for the current fiscal year.

Duration of election

The reporting period election remains in effect until:

- an election for a different reporting period takes effect; or
- your threshold amount for the fiscal year or a particular fiscal quarter in that year exceeds the maximum for the reporting period you have elected (this does not apply to charities).

- entitled to receive at least 90% of the total amount that would be paid to all members of the partnership (other than amounts that would be paid as a share of partnership income) if it were wound up; and

GENERAL INFORMATION

GST/HST fiscal year

Every registrant has a fiscal year for GST/HST purposes. We use this fiscal year to determine when your GST/HST returns are due. In most cases, your GST/HST fiscal year is the same as your taxation year for income tax purposes.

The taxation year of the following business entities is usually a calendar year:

- individuals and certain trusts; and
- professional corporations that are members of a partnership (such as a corporation that is the professional practice of an accountant, a lawyer, or a doctor).

If you have a taxation year that is the calendar year, your income tax return covers the period from January 1 to December 31. If your GST/HST fiscal year is the same as your taxation year, your GST/HST fiscal year is also January 1 to December 31.

The taxation fiscal period of a partnership, where at least one member of the partnership is an individual, professional corporation, or other affected partnership, is usually a calendar year. If your GST/HST fiscal year is the same as your taxation fiscal period, then it will also be a calendar year.

The GST/HST fiscal year of a corporation is usually the same as its taxation year for income tax purposes.

Election to use a calendar fiscal year

If your taxation year or fiscal period for income tax purposes is not a calendar year, you may elect to have a GST/HST fiscal year that is a calendar year.

Example
A partnership uses a taxation fiscal period of June 1 to May 31. The partnership may elect to use the calendar year, January 1 – December 31, as its GST/HST fiscal year.

A corporation can either use its taxation year for income tax purposes as its GST/HST fiscal year, or it can elect to use a calendar year as its GST/HST fiscal year. These are the only two GST/HST fiscal year options available to corporations.

As a new registrant, a corporation does not need to make an election to use its taxation year as its GST/HST fiscal year. However, if a corporation does not choose to use the same year end for GST/HST purposes as it uses for taxation purposes, it has to make an election to use a calendar year.

If a corporation changes its non-calendar taxation year to another non-calendar taxation year (ex. from March 31 to June 30), and if its GST/HST fiscal year was the same as the original non-calendar taxation year, the corporation has two choices:

- advise us of a change in GST/HST fiscal year as a result of a change of taxation year; or
- make an election to change its GST/HST fiscal year to the calendar year.

Election to use a non-calendar fiscal year

You can elect to have a GST/HST fiscal year that is not a calendar year if you are a self-employed individual and you use a non-calendar fiscal period for income tax purposes.

Example
You are a registrant sole proprietor and you use a taxation fiscal period of September 1 – August 31. You can elect to make your GST/HST fiscal year the same, September 1 – August 31.

The option to elect a non-calendar GST/HST fiscal year is also available to trusts. In addition, if an individual or trust is a member of a business partnership that uses a non-calendar taxation fiscal period, the individual or trust can make an election to use a GST/HST fiscal year that is the same as the taxation fiscal period used by the business partnership.

Duration of election

Your election to change your GST/HST fiscal year has to stay in effect for at least one year. In this case, "one year" means 12 consecutive calendar months.

Revoking your election

You can elect to revoke a previously chosen GST/HST fiscal year. The revocation will take effect on the first day of the new fiscal year, provided that day is at least one year from the effective date of the previous election.

Example
In August of 2001, you decide you want to use a December 31 year end rather than August 31 as described in the previous example. Let us assume that you have been using August 31 as your fiscal year end since you elected it in 1998. Because you have been using the August 31 year end for more than one year, you can revoke the election. Therefore, on September 15, 2001, you send us a request to revoke your previous (August 31) election. Effective January 1, 2002, you begin using December 31 as your GST/HST fiscal year end. If you are an annual filer, you file a return to cover the period between your old year end and the new one. In this case, the return would cover the period from September 1 to December 31, 2001. In the years 2002 and forward, your returns will cover the full year, January 1 to December 31.

GENERAL INFORMATION

Accounting Periods

Accounting periods are consecutive periods of time during the course of a fiscal year. Books and records are maintained to record the financial transactions and activities of a business during these accounting periods.

Many businesses use a 12-month period as their fiscal year. In this case, a business's fiscal year ends on the same date every year. The fiscal year is divided into accounting periods of fiscal months and fiscal quarters that end at calendar month ends.

Other businesses do not use a 12-month period as their fiscal year. Some divide their fiscal year into accounting periods that have a consistent number of working days. Others use 4-week accounting periods and have a fiscal year end that always falls on a particular day of a month (e.g., the last Saturday of April). In these cases, the date of the fiscal year end usually changes from year to year. The number of calendar days per accounting period also varies.

Who can use this form?

Use this form if your accounting periods vary in length throughout your fiscal year, or if your quarter-end and month-end dates do not end on the last day of a calendar month. Your accounting periods have to meet our guidelines for fiscal quarters and fiscal months as described in the section called "Guidelines for fiscal quarters and fiscal months."

You can also use this form if you want to use fiscal months that do not meet the guidelines described in the section called "Guidelines for fiscal quarters and fiscal months." See the instructions in the "Request to shorten or lengthen fiscal months" section on this form.

Do not use this form if:

- your business uses a standard 12-month fiscal year, your year end is on the same date every year, and your fiscal months and quarters do not meet the guidelines described on this form; or
- you want to change either your GST/HST fiscal year or your GST/HST filing frequency (e.g., from quarterly to monthly). To change either of these things, call us, or complete and send us Form GST70, Election, or Revocation of an Election, to Change a GST/HST Fiscal Year, or Form GST20, Election for GST/HST Reporting Period, respectively.

Guidelines for fiscal quarters and fiscal months

Fiscal quarters
There cannot be more than four fiscal quarters in each fiscal year. The first fiscal quarter in a fiscal year has to start on the first day of that fiscal year, and the last fiscal quarter has to end on the last day of that fiscal year. Each fiscal quarter cannot be longer than 119 days and, except for the first and last quarters of the fiscal year, each fiscal quarter cannot be shorter than 84 days.

Fiscal months

The first fiscal month in each fiscal quarter has to start on the first day of that fiscal quarter, and the last fiscal month in each fiscal quarter has to end on the last day of that fiscal quarter. Each fiscal month cannot be longer than 35 days and, except for the first and last month of a fiscal quarter, each fiscal month cannot be shorter than 28 days.

Notification of accounting periods

To notify us of your accounting periods, complete sections A, B, C, and E on the front of this form and send it to us. Be sure to enter all of the fiscal period start and end dates in section C. Attach a separate sheet if you have more than 14 fiscal months in a fiscal year.

If your fiscal months do not meet the guidelines for fiscal months, see the section called "Request to shorten or lengthen fiscal months."

Effect of notification

If the accounting periods you use are within the previously indicated guidelines, we will base your GST/HST reporting and remittance requirements on these periods.

If you have been authorized to file separate GST/HST returns for branches or divisions of your business or organization, the branches or divisions have to use the same accounting periods as your parent organization.

When to file notification

You need to file this form on or before the first day of the fiscal year to which it relates.

If you are a new GST/HST registrant, you have to file this form on or before the day that is the later of:

- the day you apply to be registered or, where you are required to file an application on or before an earlier day, that earlier day; and
- the effective date of your registration.

You have to file a new notification for each fiscal year for which you want to use your accounting periods. If you do not tell us your accounting periods, we will revert your GST/HST return and payment due dates to calendar months or calendar quarters, as appropriate.

Request to shorten or lengthen fiscal months

You need to request approval to use fiscal months that do not meet the guidelines for fiscal months in the section called "Guidelines for fiscal quarters and fiscal months." To make your request, complete sections A, B, D, and E on the front of this form and send the form to us with the reasons for using, and a list of, the fiscal months for which you are requesting approval.

We will notify you about whether we have approved your application to modify the length of fiscal months. If we deny your request, you have to file a notification using fiscal months that meet the standard guidelines.

General Information

Who can make this election?

Generally, you can use the Quick Method if your total annual worldwide taxable supplies (including GST/HST), and those of your associates, in either the first four or the last four consecutive fiscal quarters in the previous five fiscal quarters are no more than $200,000.

Certain businesses cannot use the Quick Method. For more information on these businesses, see the booklet called Quick Method of Accounting for GST/HST.

When can you make the election?

If you file annual GST/HST returns, you have to make your election by the first day of your second fiscal quarter.

If you file monthly or quarterly GST/HST returns, you have to make your election by the due date of the return for the reporting period in which you begin using the Quick Method.

You may start using the Quick Method on the effective date you indicate to us. However, this date has to be the first day of a GST/HST reporting period.

If you previously elected to use the Quick Method and had revoked that election, you have to wait at least one year from the date the revocation became effective before you can make the election again.

How long does the election stay in effect?

Generally, the election remains in effect as long as your annual worldwide taxable supplies (including those of your associates and GST/HST), do not exceed $200,000, or until you become a person who cannot use the Quick Method because of the type of business you carry on.

If your election ceases to be in effect, you have to start accounting for GST/HST in the usual way:

- at the beginning of your next fiscal year if you file annual returns and you exceed the $200,000 threshold in your current fiscal year;
- at the beginning of your second fiscal quarter of a fiscal year if you file monthly or quarterly returns, your election to use the Quick Method was in effect at the beginning of that year, and you exceeded the $200,000 threshold in your previous fiscal year; or
- at the beginning of your next fiscal quarter if you file monthly or quarterly returns, your election to use the Quick Method was not in effect at the beginning of the fiscal year, and you exceeded the $200,000 threshold in both the first four and the last four consecutive quarters of the previous five fiscal quarters.

If you have been using the Quick Method for at least one year, you can revoke your election effective at the end of any reporting period if you inform us by the due date of the return for that reporting period.

Once you revoke a Quick Method election, you have to wait at least one year before you can elect to use the Quick Method again.

To begin or stop using the Quick Method, call our Business Enquiries line at 1-800-959-5525, or send the completed form to your tax services office.

For more information about the Quick Method and the remittance rate, or rates, that you have to use, see the booklet called Quick Method of Accounting for GST/HST.

Renseignements généraux

Qui peut faire ce choix?

Habituellement, vous pouvez utiliser la méthode rapide si le total de vos fournitures taxables annuelles à l'échelle mondiale (y compris la TPS/TVH) et celles de vos associés ne dépasse pas 200 000 $ dans les quatre premiers ou les quatre derniers trimestres d'exercice consécutifs au cours des cinq derniers trimestres d'exercice.

Certaines entreprises ne peuvent pas utiliser la méthode rapide. Pour en savoir plus sur ces entreprises, consultez la brochure intitulée La méthode rapide de comptabilité pour la TPS/TVH.

Quand pouvez-vous faire ce choix?

Si vous produisez des déclarations annuelles de TPS/TVH, vous devez faire votre choix au plus tard le premier jour de votre deuxième trimestre d'exercice.

Si vous produisez des déclarations mensuelles ou trimestrielles de TPS/TVH, vous devez faire votre choix au plus tard à la date d'échéance de la déclaration pour la période de déclaration au cours de laquelle vous commencez à utiliser la méthode rapide.

Vous pouvez commencer à utiliser la méthode rapide à la date d'entrée en vigueur que vous nous indiquez. Cependant, cette date doit être le premier jour d'une période de déclaration de TPS/TVH.

Si, par le passé, vous avez choisi d'utiliser la méthode rapide et que vous avez révoqué ce choix, vous devez attendre au moins un an à partir de la date d'entrée en vigueur de la révocation avant de pouvoir refaire ce choix.

Combien de temps ce choix demeure-t-il en vigueur?

Habituellement, votre choix demeure en vigueur tant que vos fournitures taxables annuelles à l'échelle mondiale (y compris celles de vos associés et la TPS/TVH) ne dépassent pas 200 000 $, ou jusqu'à ce que vous cessiez d'être une personne qui a le droit d'utiliser la méthode rapide à cause du type d'entreprise que vous exploitez.

Si votre choix cesse d'être en vigueur, vous devez commencer à utiliser la méthode habituelle pour calculer la TPS/TVH :

- au début de votre exercice suivant si vous produisez des déclarations annuelles et que vous avez dépassé le seuil de 200 000 $ au cours de votre exercice courant;
- au début de votre deuxième trimestre d'exercice si vous produisez des déclarations mensuelles ou trimestrielles, que votre choix d'utiliser la méthode rapide était en vigueur au début de cet exercice, et que vous avez dépassé le seuil de 200 000 $ dans votre exercice précédent;
- au début de votre trimestre suivant si vous produisez des déclarations mensuelles ou trimestrielles, que votre choix d'utiliser la méthode rapide n'était pas en vigueur au début de l'exercice, et que vous avez dépassé le seuil de 200 000 $ à la fois dans les quatre premiers et les quatre derniers trimestres consécutifs au cours des cinq derniers trimestres d'exercice.

Si vous avez utilisé la méthode rapide depuis au moins un an, vous pouvez révoquer votre choix à la fin d'une période de déclaration pourvu que vous nous en informiez au plus tard à la date d'échéance de la déclaration pour cette période.

Une fois que vous avez révoqué le choix d'utiliser la méthode rapide, vous devez attendre au moins un an avant de pouvoir refaire ce choix.

Pour choisir ou révoquer votre choix d'utiliser la méthode rapide, appelez notre service de renseignements aux entreprises au 1 800 959-7775 ou envoyez ce formulaire rempli à votre bureau des services fiscaux.

Pour en savoir plus sur la méthode rapide et sur le ou les taux de versement que vous devez utiliser, consultez la brochure intitulée La méthode rapide de comptabilité pour la TPS/TVH.

General information

Closely related corporation

A particular corporation is closely related to another corporation, if at any time both corporations are GST/HST registrants and residents in Canada, and

(a) 90% or more of the value and number of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the other corporation, having full voting rights, under all circumstances, are owned by

Corporations resident in Canada that are closely related to the same corporation, or would be related if that corporation was resident in Canada, are closely related to each other.

Effect of this application

Beginning with the reporting period in which you receive acknowledgment of this application, any GST/HST refund or rebate to which a member of a closely related group is entitled may be used to reduce or offset the following amounts owing by another member:

- net tax for the GST/HST reporting period;
- tax payable that must be self-assessed on the acquisition of real property;
- interim net tax and net tax as calculated on a final return for a reporting period of a selected listed financial institution. (for more information, see our guide called GST/HST Information for Selected Listed Financial Institutions);
- GST/HST payable by self-assessment on imported taxable supplies; and
- the provincial part of HST payable by self-assessment on property and services brought into a participating province.

Modification to the members of the group

If a corporation becomes a member of a group after the group has filed a joint application, the coordinator has to file a revised application in order to include the other corporation as a member. Coordinators must not file the new member's GST/HST return, direction, or application for a refund or a rebate until they receive our acknowledgment of the revised application.

If a corporation ceases to be a member of the group, the coordinator has to notify the taxation centre in writing.

Filing instructions

For each reporting period, the coordinator has to file together all the GST/HST returns, directions, and applications for a refund or rebate of the members. The coordinator also has to provide a statement with the following information:

- the amount of tax each member of the group is required to remit or pay; and

For each reporting period, the coordinator has to remit the amount of tax, if any, remittable by each member and, in the case where a member reduces or offsets the tax remittable by a refund or rebate or a portion thereof according to a direction, the amount of tax remittable after the reduction or offset.

Canada

Why do you need to complete this form?

Tax information is confidential. If you want the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (CCRA) to deal with another person (such as your spouse or common-law partner or accountant) as your representative for income tax matters, the CCRA needs your authorization. You can do this by completing Parts 1, 2, and 4 of this form.

Your authorization will stay in effect until you cancel it. It is important that you remember each authorization given to the CCRA so that you can cancel the authorization when it is no longer needed. You can cancel an existing authorization by either calling the CCRA or by completing Parts 1, 3, and 4 of this form. All authorizations are automatically cancelled upon notification of death.

You will have to complete a new Form T1013 if you want to change any information about an existing representative. For example, if your representative is a firm, you may authorize the CCRA to deal with a specific individual in that firm. In a future year, should you want to replace that individual with another individual in the same firm, you will have to complete a new form to update your authorization.

You can have more than one representative authorized at the same time. However, you have to complete a separate Form T1013 for each representative.

Note: If your representative is a firm and you do not identify a specific individual in the firm as your representative, you are giving the CCRA authority to deal with anyone from that firm.

Does your spouse, common-law partner, or other family member need your authorization?

Yes. The CCRA cannot deal with your spouse, common-law partner, son, daughter, or other family member without your authorization.

What will your representative be allowed to do?

When you authorize the CCRA to deal with a representative, you are allowing that person to act on your behalf in almost all income tax matters for the tax year or years you specify. (Income tax matters include issues relating to the Canada Child Tax Benefit, as well as the goods and services tax/harmonized sales tax credit.) For example, the representative will be allowed to discuss your confidential tax information with the CCRA and ask the CCRA to make changes to your tax return.

If your representative visits us, we will ask that person for either of the following:

- one piece of signed identification with his or her picture; or
- two pieces of signed identification.

In addition, we will ask for either of the following:

- your Notice of Assessment, Notice of Reassessment, or other tax documents; or

Instructions

This form only applies when amounts from a deceased annuitant's RRSP are paid to the annuitant's estate and a qualified beneficiary is a beneficiary of the estate. The deceased annuitant's legal representative and the qualified beneficiary can jointly file Form T2019 to designate all or part of the amounts the annuitant's estate received from the RRSP to have been received by the qualified beneficiary as a refund of premiums. If filed, this election allows:

- the annuitant's legal representative to reduce the amount the annuitant is considered to have received from the RRSP at the time of death; and
- the qualified beneficiary to transfer the refund of premiums to an eligible plan or fund, or to an issuer to buy an eligible annuity.

Complete a separate form for each RRSP of the deceased, for each year for which payments are made out of the RRSP to the annuitant's estate, and for each qualified beneficiary.

The qualified beneficiary has to attach copy 1 of the form to his or her return for the year in which the payment being designated was paid to the deceased's estate. The part of the amount designated on line 8 that is not included in the deceased annuitant's income for the year of death has to be reported on line 129 of the qualified beneficiary's return. If part of the amount on line 8 is included in the annuitant's income, the annuitant's legal representative can use copy 3 to reduce the amount reported in the annuitant's final return. Copy 3 can be filed with the deceased's final return, or later to request an adjustment to the return.

For more information on the reduction to the deceased annuitant's income and the transfer options available to a qualified beneficiary, see information sheet RC4177, Death of an RRSP Annuitant.

Definitions

Financially dependent – A person is generally considered to be a financially dependent child or grandchild of a deceased annuitant at the time of death if, before death, the person resided with and depended on the annuitant, and one of the following conditions applied:

- the person's net income for the previous year was less than the basic personal amount for that year (line 300 from Schedule 1); or
- for 2003 and later years, the person was infirm and the person's net income for the previous year was equal to or less than $13,814 (indexed annually after 2003).

A person is still considered to have resided with the annuitant if, before the annuitant died, the person lived away from home for educational reasons.

If the person's net income was more than the amounts described above, the person will not be considered to be financially dependent on the annuitant at the time of death, unless the person can establish the contrary. In such a case, the person or the deceased's legal representative should submit a written request to the person's tax services office outlining the reasons why the person should be considered to be financially dependent on the annuitant at the time of death.

Qualified beneficiary – A qualified beneficiary includes the deceased annuitant's spouse or common-law partner. It also includes a financially dependent child or grandchild of the deceased annuitant, if the death occurred:

- in 1999 or later;
- in 1998, and the annuitant had no spouse or common-law partner at the time of death;
- in 1998, the annuitant had a spouse or common-law partner at the time of death, and an election was filed to treat the child or grandchild as a qualified beneficiary (for more information on this election, contact your tax services office);
- in 1996 or 1997, the annuitant had a spouse at the time of death, and an election was filed to treat the child or grandchild as a qualified beneficiary (for more information on this election, contact your tax services office); and
- from 1993 to 1997, and the annuitant had no spouse at the time of death.

Refund of premiums – This is an amount that is paid or considered to have been paid from a deceased annuitant's RRSP to a qualified beneficiary. This amount can be included in the income of the qualified beneficiary who receives it instead of the income of the deceased annuitant or the annuitant's estate. The qualified beneficiary who receives a refund of premiums can defer paying tax on the amount by transferring it to an eligible plan or fund, or to an issuer to buy an eligible annuity.

Instructions

Ce formulaire s'applique uniquement lorsqu'un montant du REER d'un rentier décédé est payé à la succession de ce dernier et qu'un bénéficiaire admissible est bénéficiaire de la succession. Dans ce cas, le représentant légal du rentier décédé et le bénéficiaire admissible peuvent produire ensemble ce formulaire pour désigner une partie ou la totalité des montants que la succession a reçus du REER du rentier décédé comme un remboursement de primes reçu par le bénéficiaire admissible. Lorsque ce formulaire est produit, il permet les actions suivantes :

- le représentant légal du rentier peut demander une réduction du montant que le rentier est considéré avoir reçu de son REER au moment du décès;
- le bénéficiaire admissible peut transférer le remboursement de primes à un régime ou à un fonds admissible, ou à un émetteur pour acheter une rente admissible.

Remplissez un formulaire T2019 distinct pour chacun des REER du rentier décédé, pour chaque année au cours de laquelle des paiements ont été faits à la succession du rentier, et pour chaque bénéficiaire admissible.

Le bénéficiaire admissible doit annexer la copie 1 du formulaire à sa déclaration de revenus pour l'année au cours de laquelle le montant faisant l'objet de la désignation a été payé à la succession du rentier. La partie du montant de la ligne 8 qui n'est pas incluse dans le revenu du rentier décédé pour l'année du décès doit être déclarée à la ligne 129 de la déclaration du bénéficiaire admissible. Si une partie du montant de la ligne 8 est incluse dans le revenu du rentier, le représentant légal du rentier peut utiliser la copie 3 du formulaire pour demander un rajustement à la déclaration pour réduire le montant déclaré par le rentier. La copie 3 du formulaire peut être produite avec la déclaration du rentier pour l'année du décès, ou plus tard comme demande de rajustement pour cette déclaration.

Pour en savoir plus sur la réduction du revenu du rentier décédé et sur les options de transfert dont disposent les bénéficiaires admissibles, consultez la feuille de renseignements RC4177, Décès du rentier d'un REER.

Définitions

Bénéficiaire admissible – Un bénéficiaire admissible peut être l'époux ou conjoint de fait du rentier décédé. Il peut également s'agir d'un enfant ou d'un petit-enfant du rentier, qui était financièrement à sa charge, si le décès est survenu :

- en 1999 ou après;
- en 1998, et que le rentier n'avait pas d'époux ou conjoint de fait au moment de son décès;
- en 1998, que le rentier avait un époux ou conjoint de fait au moment de son décès, et qu'un choix avait été fait pour que l'enfant ou le petit-enfant soit considéré comme bénéficiaire admissible (pour en savoir plus sur ce choix, communiquez avec votre bureau des services fiscaux);
- en 1996 ou 1997, que le rentier avait un conjoint au moment de son décès, et qu'un choix avait été fait pour que l'enfant ou le petit-enfant soit considéré comme bénéficiaire admissible (pour en savoir plus sur ce choix, communiquez avec votre bureau des services fiscaux);
- de 1993 à 1997, et que le rentier n'avait pas de conjoint au moment de son décès.

Financièrement à charge – Une personne est généralement considérée comme étant un enfant ou petit-enfant financièrement à la charge du rentier décédé au moment du décès si, avant ce décès, la personne résidait habituellement avec lui, était à sa charge et que l'une des conditions suivantes était remplie :

- le revenu net de la personne pour l'année précédente était inférieur au montant personnel de base pour cette année-là (ligne 300 de l'annexe 1);
- pour 2003 et après, la personne a une déficience et son revenu net pour l'année précédente était égal ou inférieur à 13 814 $ (indexé annuellement après 2003).

Si la personne ne résidait pas avec le rentier avant le décès de ce dernier, uniquement en raison de ses études, nous considérons qu'elle résidait quand même avec le rentier.

Si le revenu net de la personne dépassait les montants décrits ci-dessus, nous ne la considérons pas financièrement à la charge du rentier au moment du décès de ce dernier, à moins qu'elle puisse prouver le contraire. Dans un tel cas, la personne ou le représentant légal du rentier décédé doit présenter une demande écrite au bureau des services fiscaux de la personne indiquant les raisons pour lesquelles la personne doit être considérée financièrement à la charge du rentier au moment de son décès.

Remboursement de primes – Il s'agit d'un montant payé ou considéré comme ayant été payé à même le REER d'un rentier décédé à un bénéficiaire admissible. Ce montant peut être inclus dans le revenu du bénéficiaire qui le reçoit au lieu de celui du rentier décédé ou de la succession de ce dernier. Le bénéficiaire admissible qui reçoit un remboursement de primes peut reporter le paiement d'impôt sur ce montant, à condition qu'il transfère le montant à un régime ou à un fonds admissible, ou à un émetteur pour acheter une rente admissible.

Who should complete this form?

Complete this form if you meet both of the following conditions:

- you received an amount from a spousal or common-law partner RRSP or RRIF; and
- your spouse or common-law partner made a contribution to a spousal or common-law partner RRSP for you in the year you received the amount or in the two preceding years.

By completing this form, you will calculate how much of the amount to include in your income on your own return, and how much your spouse or common-law partner has to include in income.

If your RRSP or RRIF has been deregistered, we consider that you received an amount from it in the year it was deregistered. The amount we consider that you received is the fair market value of the plan or fund calculated immediately before it was deregistered. This requirement does not apply to deregistered RRIFs that were established before March 1986, unless they were amended after February 1986.

Do not complete this form if any of the following apply:

- the amount you received is a periodic annuity payment from an RRSP;
- the amount you received is a minimum amount payment from a RRIF; or
- your spouse or common-law partner died in the year.

Do not complete this form if, when you received the amount or when the RRSP or RRIF was deregistered, either of the following applied:

- you and your spouse or common-law partner were living separate and apart because of your relationship breakdown; or
- you or your spouse or common-law partner was a non-resident.

In any of the situations listed above, include the amounts in your own income.

Spousal or common-law partner RRSP and RRIF

An RRSP or RRIF is a spousal or common-law partner plan or fund if it meets any of the following conditions:

- Your spouse or common-law partner contributed an amount to the RRSP while you were the annuitant.
- It is an RRSP that has received a payment or a transfer of property from a spousal or common-law partner RRSP or RRIF.
- It is a RRIF that has received a payment or a transfer of property from a spousal or common-law partner RRSP or RRIF.

For more details, see "Amounts from a Spousal or Common-law Partner RRSP or RRIF" in Chapter 4 of the RRSPs and Other Registered Plans for Retirement guide.

Lines 5 and 16

If your spouse or common-law partner made more than one contribution to your RRSPs in the two preceding years, he or she has to include the contributions in income in the order he or she contributed them.

Example: James makes the following contributions to Tania's RRSP.

1999:	$3,000
2000:	$8,000
2001:	$ 0
2002:	$ 0

Tania made the following withdrawals from her spousal RRSP.

2001:	$5,000
2002:	$4,000

James had to include $5,000 in income for 2001. That $5,000 represented, in order, $3,000 from 1999, and $2,000 from the year 2000 contribution of $8,000.

When Tania completes this form for 2002, the amount on line 5 will be $2,000 (the amount James included in income for the year 2000 contribution).

Unused contributions

Part of the amount your spouse or common-law partner includes in income for the year, based on this completed form, may be for RRSP contributions that were not deducted for any year. Your spouse or common-law partner may be able to claim a deduction on his or her return to offset the amount included in income. To determine the deductible amount, your spouse or common-law partner can complete Form T746, Calculating Your Deduction for Refund of Unused RRSP Contributions.

Tax deducted

Only the person who is shown as the annuitant on the T4RSP or T4RIF slip can claim the income tax deducted. The amount of tax deducted is shown in box 30 of the T4RSP or box 28 of the T4RIF slip.

You can only deduct it from the same partnership's income in future years if you have a positive at-risk amount after applying the provisions of paragraph 111(1)(e) of the Act. You can carry it forward indefinitely.
The part of the partnership loss that you can deduct in the current year is in box 18 or 20, whichever applies or, if there is a footnote for box 31, you may be able to claim previous-year losses.

The maximum deduction you are allowed is 100% of the CCEE pool balance, 30% of the CCDE pool balance, and 10% of the CCOGPE pool balance.
If the CCOGPE pool balance is negative, use that amount to reduce your CCDE pool. If your CCEE or CCDE pools have a negative balance, you have to report the negative amount as income on line 130 of your income tax and benefit return. If you need information, call us at 1-800-959-8281.

CONTRACT PAYMENT REPORTING SYSTEM

General information

The Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (CCRA), in consultation with the construction industry developed the Contract Payment Reporting System (CPRS) to encourage compliance in that industry.

As of January 1, 1999, the CPRS requires construction businesses to record payments they make to subcontractors for construction services and report these payments to the CCRA.

Who will have to report?

If you are an individual, partnership, trust, or corporation with construction as your primary business activity and you make payments to subcontractors for construction services, section 238 of the Income Tax Regulations requires you to complete an information return.

An information return for the CPRS consists of two things: a Statement of Contract Payments (T5018 slip) and a Summary of Contract Payments (T5018 Summary). The summary alone is not an information return. You have to complete a T5018 Summary even if you prepare only one T5018 slip. This form and slips are available from your tax services office or our Web site at www.ccra-adrc.gc.ca/contract/

See "Other filing formats" on the next page for other methods of filing the information return.

A subcontractor is an individual, partnership, trust, or corporation that provides construction services to a business. Subcontractors include individuals or businesses that are goods and services tax / harmonized sales tax (GST/HST) registrants, and non-GST/HST registrants that are below the $30,000 limit for GST/HST registration purposes. You do not need to report payments to subcontractors for services such as bookkeeping, janitorial, or legal.

Construction includes activities such as erection, excavation, installation, alteration, modification, repair, improvement, demolition, destruction, dismantling, and removal.

What payments do you report on the slips?

Report all payments you make to subcontractors for construction services including GST/HST and provincial sales tax where applicable. You do not have to report payments you make for goods only. Report mixed services and goods payments if there is a service component of $500 or more in the year.

If you paid an individual subcontractor less than $500 for services rendered in the year, you do not have to report these payments. You do not need to report wages you pay to employees on these slips. You will report wages on T4 slips.

You also have to report amounts you pay to a Canadian resident for construction services provided outside Canada.

For what period do you report these payments?

You can report payments on a calendar-year basis, or based on your fiscal year end. Once you choose a reporting period, subsequent returns must be filed for the same reporting year unless otherwise authorized in writing by the CCRA.

SYSTÈME DE DÉCLARATION DES PAIEMENTS CONTRACTUELS

Renseignements généraux

L'Agence des douanes et du revenu du Canada (ADRC), en consultation avec l'industrie de la construction a développé le système de déclaration des paiements contractuels (SDPC) pour encourager l'observation volontaire au sein de cette industrie.

À compter du 1er janvier 1999, le SDPC oblige les entreprises de construction à consigner les paiements qu'elles versent aux sous-traitants qui fournissent des services de construction et à déclarer ces paiements à l'ADRC.

Qui devra faire une déclaration?

Si vous êtes un particulier, une société de personnes, une fiducie ou une société, que votre principale occupation est la construction et que vous payez des montants à des sous-traitants pour des services de construction, l'article 238 du Règlement de l'impôt sur le revenu exige que vous remplissiez une déclaration de renseignements.

Pour faire une déclaration de renseignements pour le SDPC, vous devez remplir les feuillets T5018, État des paiements contractuels et le formulaire T5018 Sommaire des paiements contractuels. Un formulaire Sommaire seul n'est pas une déclaration de renseignements. Vous devez remplir un formulaire T5018 Sommaire même si vous n'établissez qu'un seul feuillet T5018. Ce formulaire et ces feuillets sont disponibles de l'un de nos bureaux des services fiscaux ou sur notre site Web au www.ccra-adrc.gc.ca/contrat/

Lisez la section « Autres formats de production », à la page suivante pour connaître d'autres méthodes de production pour la déclaration de renseignements.

Un sous-traitant est un particulier, une société de personnes, une fiducie ou une société qui fournit des services de construction à une entreprise. Cela comprend les particuliers ou les entreprises inscrits à la taxe sur les produits et services / taxe de vente harmonisée (TPS/TVH), ainsi que ceux qui ne sont pas tenus de s'inscrire à la TPS/TVH parce qu'ils ont déclaré des ventes inférieures à 30 000 $. Vous n'êtes pas tenu de déclarer les paiements aux sous-traitants qui fournissent d'autres services, comme des services de tenue de livres, de concierge ou des services juridiques.

La construction comprend des activités comme l'édification, l'excavation, l'installation, la modification, la rénovation, la réparation, l'amélioration, la démolition, la destruction, le démantèlement ou l'enlèvement.

Quels paiements devez-vous déclarer sur les feuillets?

Vous devez déclarer tous les paiements faits à des sous-traitants pour des services de construction, y compris la TPS/TVH et la taxe de vente provinciale, s'il y a lieu. Vous n'êtes pas tenu de déclarer les paiements que vous avez versés uniquement pour des biens. Déclarez les paiements que vous avez versés à la fois pour des services et pour des biens si la composante des services s'élève à 500 $ et plus dans l'année.

Si le montant total versé pour des services dans l'année à un particulier sous-traitant est inférieur à 500 $, vous n'êtes pas tenu de déclarer ces paiements. Vous n'êtes pas tenu de déclarer les salaires que vous versez à des employés sur ces feuillets. Déclarez les salaires sur des feuillets T4.

Vous devez également déclarer les montants que vous payez à un résident canadien pour des services de construction qu'il a rendus à l'étranger.

Pour quelle période devez-vous déclarer ces paiements?

Vous pouvez déclarer ces paiements selon l'année civile ou la fin de votre exercice. Une fois que vous avez établi une période de déclaration, vous devrez produire les déclarations suivantes selon cette période, à moins d'avoir reçu l'autorisation écrite de l'ADRC.
